รื่อเรื่อง: Invitation to Nominate Outstanding Thai Students for the 13th USLS in Malaysia (J51)

Some people who received this message don't often get email from jleong@humanitarianaffairs.asia.Learn why this is important

Dear Associate Professor Dr. Sarintip Tantanee,

Thailand has long been known for nurturing respectful, compassionate, and socially conscious young leave is individuals who bring heart, resilience, and cultural insight to the global stage. In this pivotal time of global change, it is essential to equip our youth with the values, mindset, and cross-cultural perspective to lead with integrity and purpose.

We are honoured to invite your esteemed university to nominate 2 to 3 outstanding student leaders to represent Thailand at the 13th University Scholars Leadership Symposium (USLS), taking place from August 5 to 8, 2025, in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia.

Organised by Humanitarian Affairs Asia, USLS is a highly regarded global leadership development programme that brings together youth leaders from over 100 countries. Through immersive learning, expert-led sessions, and service-based activities, delegates explore urgent global issues and develop into ethical, effective changemakers.

We are honoured to share that the United Nations has formally endorsed USLS 2025, affirming its reputation as a transformative leadership development experience. Please refer to the attached document for more details.

"While the journey students undertake at USLS is deeply personal, it is also profoundly professional. They step outside their comfort zones, engage in meaningful reflection, and return more confident, connected, and committed to social causes."

> Felipe Queipo Programme Management & Communications Officer Civil Society & Advocacy Section Department of Global Communications The United Nations, New York

USLS is not just a symposium—it is a transformative journey. One of the highlights isKindness Day, where delegates take part in meaningful outreach projects, applying leadership in action while deepening their sense of global citizenship and empathy.

Are you ready to step into the role of a global changemaker?

The world needs bold, compassionate, and action-driven leaders now more than ever—leaders who can navigate pressing global challenges, drive sustainable change, and inspire others to take action. The 13th University Scholars Leadership Symposium (USLS) 2025 is a prestigious global leadership training program designed for high-potential university students who aspire to make a meaningful impact on the world.

Since its inception, USLS has empowered over 10,000 young leaders from 100+ countries, many of whom have gone on to launch humanitarian projects, lead social enterprises, and contribute to the United Nations and international NGOs. This is your chance to gain the knowledge, skills, and network to become an influential force for good.

Why Attend USLS 2025?

- Exclusive Learning Experience Engage with world-renowned humanitarian leaders, social entrepreneurs, and UN officials who are shaping global policies and solutions.
- Experiential Learning Take part in Kindness Day, where you'll step out of the conference room and work directly with marginalized communities, turning insights into real action.
- Global Networking Build connections with like-minded changemakers from diverse backgrounds, forming a powerful network of future leaders.
- Career Development Develop critical leadership, advocacy, and crisis response skills that set you apart in your future career.
- ☑ High-Level Recognition USLS 2025 is co-partnered with the Government of Malaysia, adding prestige and credibility to your leadership journey.

At USLS, you won't just listen—you'll act, engage, and transform. This is more than a symposium; it's a launchpad for your leadership journey in humanitarianism, social impact, and sustainable development.

- Take the first step in your humanitarian leadership journey.
- Apply now and be part of a movement that changes lives!

To Whom It May Concern

It is with great enthusiasm that I express my support for the 13th University Scholars Leadership Symposium (USLS), to be held in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, from 5 to 8 August 2025. Having had the privilege of addressing several conferences organized by Humanitarian Affairs Asia in both Thailand and Malaysia, I have witnessed firsthand the transformative power of their work in empowering youth to become ethical, inclusive, and courageous leaders.

In my capacity as a Programme Management and Communications Officer with the United Nations, I have engaged with countless initiatives aimed at youth development. Yet, few match the depth, impact, and inspiration of the USLS. This Symposium is not merely a gathering—it is a launchpad for young changemakers who are already shaping the world around them. It reinforces the belief that youth are not just the leaders of tomorrow—they are the catalysts of change today.

The USLS equips participants with the mindset, tools, and global network needed to take bold and responsible action on the world's most pressing challenges. It is a space where students build the courage to lead and the compassion to serve. Through powerful storytelling, immersive learning, and cross-cultural collaboration, the Symposium nurtures values-driven leadership that is both visionary and grounded in service.

Importantly, the USLS aligns closely with the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). From climate action and quality education to reduced inequalities and peacebuilding, the Symposium fosters awareness and action that reflect the spirit of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development. It inspires youth to translate global goals into local impact, cultivating global citizens who take responsibility for the communities around them.

While the journey students undertake at USLS is deeply personal, it is also profoundly professional. They step outside their comfort zones, engage in meaningful reflection, and return more confident, connected, and committed to social causes. I have seen participants go on to lead initiatives in their universities, launch community projects, and advocate for inclusive policies—testament to the Symposium's lasting influence.

The United Nations shares a long-standing vision with Humanitarian Affairs Asia: to amplify youth voices and empower them to lead with integrity and empathy. Investing in opportunities like the USLS is, in essence, an investment in peace, sustainability, and our shared future.

I urge educators to champion this opportunity. Encourage your students—especially those with passion and potential—to attend the USLS. It is not just a conference; it is an incubator for hope, leadership, and lifelong service. I have no doubt that those young people that participate in the Symposium will return not only with essential knowledge, but as inspired agents of change.

I wholeheartedly recommend the University Scholars Leadership Symposium and commend Humanitarian Affairs Asia for their unwavering commitment to youth empowerment.

Sincerely

Felipe Queipo
